DIRECTIONS
for Playing Smith's Chromatic Bible Index Game

Distribute the cards—after shuffling—to any number of players from three to twelve. Beginning with the player next to the dealer on the left, a call is made—for any player—for any card desired, to further complete either of the groups of Bible Books as they appear on the chart of Smith's Chromatic Bible Index. The right to call is continued in the same player until he fails to get the card called for, therefore the next player succeeds to the right to call, and in like turn each player composing the party at play, takes the right to call.

On the completion of a Group in the hands of any one player, he makes the announcement, and the cards are withdrawn from play. When all the groups have been secured by individual players, the play ceases, while an auditing is made, and each player is given credit according to the number of cards composing the groups secured in the play.

The above process is repeated until some player has to his credit Sixty-six (66) Books.
