

RULES — FOR — GAME OF "FRENZIED FINANCE"

Copyright 1901, by Home Game Co.

SYNOPSIS OF GAME.—The game is played by three or more players; it is a Mimic Stock Exchange—a "FRENZIED FINANCE." The idea is to inflate or bid a certain stock as high as possible and then create a corner making as many points as possible at the expense of the other players.

BIDDING.—Select as many different stocks as there are players including the FRENZIED FINANCE card, shuffle and deal out all these cards. As quickly as possible each player sorts his cards and begins to bid to the board the amount he thinks he can make. As soon as the highest bid is made the trading begins. BID QUICKLY AND WITH LIFE.

TRADING.—Select from your hand any card or cards (all of the same kind) that you wish to exchange, offering to trade with anyone and shouting one, one, one! or, two, two, two! or, three, three, three! depending on the number of cards you have to trade. This trading is continued until one player secures a corner then the trading is ended and the count begins.

COUNTING.—A player successfully cornering a stock adds the amount he bid to that stock, in case he was the highest bidder.

A player who was the highest bidder failing to secure a corner loses the amount that the player makes who secures the corner.

A player may make a corner with eight cards of one kind, counting the face value of the stock.

A player may make a corner with only seven cards of one kind and the "FRENZIED FINANCE" card in which event he must call "corner" his winnings then count double the value of the stock indicated on that stock.

If a player holds eight cards all of the same kind and the "FRENZIED FINANCE" card he does not call corner but "FRENZIED FINANCE." This not only doubles his own indicated winnings but wipes out all the accumulated winnings of the other players, and the other players start at zero whether or not they had scores or were "in the hole" at the time.

PENALTY.—If a trader should call corner or "FRENZIED FINANCE" before the proper time he is subjected to a fine of one dollar.

OBJECT OF THE GAME IS TO GET A SCORE OF $10.00. THE PLAYER FIRST SUCCEEDING IN THIS WINS THE GAME.

SPECIAL NOTICE.
