DIRECTIONS.

1. This game may be played by any number of players. It is a narrative of the adventures of a young sailor on a cruise; with blank spaces left to be filled in by the players as the game progresses.
2. The curious and contrary nature of the articles, for the use to which they are assigned, in the story, cannot fail to excite laughter and merriment.
3. A person is selected to read the story, who divides the cards among the players. The players keep their cards in a pile face downwards, and do not select or pick them out, but take them in regular order as they lay in the pile.
4. The reader pauses at each....in the story and the players, beginning at the left hand of the reader, read their cards in rotation, one for each....thus making the story complete. After reading a card lay it aside.
5. As the cards never come twice in the same order, an endless and comical variation in the narrative is secured.

'ROUND THE WORLD JOE.

Joe Saltwater was born in the town of Inland. His parents were as kind to him as.....is to....., but he was as fond of the sea as.....so he determined to brave.....his father kept behind.....to whip him with when he had been naughty, or had made his little sister cry by pulling her hair like.....

One night when it was as dark as.....he went up to his room and made up a bundle of....., and....., and putting and into his pockets for lunch, he climbed out of his window like....., and slid down the water pipe into.....that was underneath.

He walked all night and by morning he was as tired as.....but he soon came to the seaport where he was going to ship as.....or a cabin boy, he did not quite know which.

He went down on the wharf and went on board a ship, called the ORIENT, where he saw.....and..... in a cage on the deck and told the captain he wanted to go to.....or.....and that he could do almost anything from taking care of.....to making.....

The captain laughed like..... and told him to take his bundle below, as the ship would sail as soon as..... came aboard.

The ship soon got "under way," and as all sail was soon set, she looked as beautiful as.....or..... It was as rough as.....out side the harbor, and Joe was soon as sick as.....and felt like..... and after taking.....to make him feel better, he went over to.....and lay down on.....thinking it was his berth.

Joe was sea-sick for several days, but like....it at last came to an end. Joe had to work like....and his berth was no larger than....yet he was as contented as..... He soon got to know all the ropes from....to...., and learned that always points toward the north.

The first port at which the ORIENT stopped was Rio de Janeiro, where they unloaded their cargo of....and....and shipped a cargo of....and....for San Francisco.

Joe said that the Brazilians were as picturesque as.... As they were about to sail a passenger came on board carrying....and....and.... The captain said the weather was as fine as...., but before they reached.... it would be blowing like.... And so it proved, for rounding Cape Horn the weather was as stormy as.... and the waves were higher than.... and washed....and....off the decks.

After a passage which the Captain said was longer than....they reached San Francisco.

Here Joe shipped as....on a Pacific Mail Steamer. His station was in front of....where it was as hot as.....

When they reached Yokohama, Joe who was as pleased as....with the strange sights, ran away with...., to try and find.... He purchased....and....of a man wearing...., for curiosities.

He thought the people looked like....dressed in....

From Yokohama Joe shipped with....for Liverpool via Suez Canal. After a voyage as hot as.... they reached Liverpool.

After staying in Liverpool about two weeks and seeing....and.... and all the sights, Joe took passage in a barque loaded with....for New York, which he reached after an uneventful voyage. He at once hurried home to Inland, as fast as....could take him. His parents were delighted to see him, and his friends thought him greater than, and he himself felt as big as.....

He brought home a lot of curiosities in his chest, among which were....and....and..... Here we will leave Joe feeling as happy as.....
