

streets, and stopping at a peanut stand, asked what they charged for _____, but finally purchased _____ and resumed his walk; he was surprised to see a fine horse driven by _____, and pulling _____; but judge of his astonishment, on meeting a lady leaning on the arm of _____, and carrying in her hand _____, and by her side walked _____; she was eating _____ with great relish.

Peter sauntered into an art gallery, and greatly admired a picture of _____, in the foreground was _____, and near some tall trees stood _____, weeping by the side of _____.

When Mr. Codles returned home, he never tired talking of the wonders he had seen; he brought for his wife _____, also, _____; to his son he gave _____, and to the baby he gave _____; all these beautiful presents were highly prized, and Peter was looked up as _____ ever after.

Play CUCKOO For Fun.

PETER CODLES.

PLACE the cards in the center of the table, face down, a player must be selected to read aloud from the book, and at the first _____, the player on his left must select a card from the pack, and read it aloud to finish the sentence; at the next _____, the next player must select the card and so on.

BOOK.

Mr. Codles arrived safe in New York, and proceeded at once to the hotel as directed; stepping up to the clerk, he asked for _____. What's that, said the clerk? Peter replied, I want _____. Well, you will not get it here, said the clerk; do you take me for _____? No, replied Peter; give me a room, and send up _____. Mr. Codles was shown to a room by _____, but was surprised to find at the very door ———, in the middle of the floor stood ———, on a chair close to the window sat ———, and hanging from a peg was ———. Peter at once inspected the bed, and was horrified, on turning down the quilt, to discover ———. Peter rushed from the room, tripping over ———, and fell headlong down the stairs, landing on ———; getting quickly to his feet, he fled from the place, into the arms of ———; he then took a horse-car for a quiet ride; when the conductor asked for his fare, he handed him ———, which was refused; so putting his hand in his pocket, Peter drew forth ———, also ——— after that ——— and from the other pocket ———, and from his vest pocket ———, and out of his hat ———. and from the leg of his boot. ———

The conductor told Peter he must get off the car, which he did, stepping on ———, which so startled him, he ran against ———. Peter was now so excited, that he sat down on ———. Starting off again, Peter resolved to quiet his nerves by a little lunch, so entering a restaurant, he called for ———; the waiter said they did not have any, and asked if he would try ———. Peter did not fancy this, but ordered ———, and bring it hot with ———, and also a slice of ———, and boil for me ———, and after that, just serve up cold ———.

The waiter, thinking the man was crazy, brought in a police officer, and poor Peter was led off to the station, followed by a lot of small boys, who called out there goes ———, and look at ———, he was trying to steal ———.

At the station, Peter was asked his name, and said, I am called ———; I am as old as ———, my wife is called ———.

Thinking him harmless, they dismissed him. Peter wandered the